The Paul Family Bluegrass band is a family of seven that operates a 12,000 tap, 260 acre maple syrup farm in Michigan's Upper Peninsula. Before the Fall & Winter Season returns and their "farming" season, the Paul family have loaded up into their 45' tour bus for a music tour through. Their primary focus is towards encouraging families and individuals through music.

With an ear towards traditional Gospel and Appalachian bluegrass music, the widely acclaimed Paul Family purposefully and skillfully blend together six acoustic stringed instruments combined with tasteful harmonies resulting in a sound and performance that only a family can deliver. A wide range of music styling of traditional, contemporary and even real country music has a profound influence on the overall sound of The Paul Family Bluegrass Band.

Featuring a mix of Gospel, originals, traditional and modern bluegrass songs, the Paul family is equally as comfortable at bluegrass festivals, as they are at churches and community events. Paul Family Bluegrass can be found performing almost anywhere as they travel annually across America while performing up to a hundred concerts annually. This multi-talented family band is coming to Anchor Point Bible Church on Sunday, September 24 as well as some other venues in West Michigan. The family's love for the Lord is evident in all they do and is easily noticeable in their music, stage presence and audience interaction.

APBC welcomes the Paul Family Bluegrass Band for the Sunday, Sept.24th morning worship service at 10:00 a.m. and invite you for this fun and inspirational concert as we share God's love and truth from His Word in song and spoken word. You will leave feeling encouraged, enlightened, empowered, and emboldened.
